

Jason's Voting Record

Centrist Voting Record

Congressman

Altmire is consistently rated as one of the most independent members of Congress. In fact, Altmire's voting record in 2008 placed him exactly in the center of the U.S. House of Representatives: Fifty percent of House members were more liberal than Altmire and 50 percent of Members were more conservative. For more information, see Independent Study Says Altmire's Voting Record Places Him Exactly in the Center.

Perfect Attendance

Congressman

Altmire is one of only two Members of the House of Representatives who never missed a vote during the entire 110th Congress. Altmire was present and voting for each one of the 1,876 votes called during the 2007-2008 session. He has continued this streak into the new session of Congress and has yet to miss a vote during his entire time in Congress. You can look at each one of Congressman Altmire's votes by going to www.thomas.gov.